Application CD Scroll, a handy and simple way to make a menu for your disks. In order to create your own menu, you need a simple installer, a configuration file and pictures of the icons. You need to edit a text file with the instructions to provide this data, copy the text file to the installation folder and hit "Install". Easy as that. One of the best options is to make the configuration file as a text file and include the pictures of the icons you want to use. To install the required icon, copy the picture to the directory that has the configuration file. Once this is done, hit "Install". These are the most used commands: Installation: This will launch the default installer or the icon specified with the icon command. Icon: This will show the list of icons defined in the configuration file. Each icon can have a picture or an description, or none at all. Install: This will launch the default installer, or the icon specified with the icon command. Screenshots: This will show a picture of the defined icon, or none if there is no picture. If you have any questions or comments, feel free to post them here. Properties: Shows the properties of the selected icon, or none if there are none. Help: Shows the help manual. Screenshots: Shows the screenshots of the selected icons, or none if there are no screenshots. Tracks: Shows the total number of tracks on the disk. Library: Shows the icons in the library. Emulation: Shows the emulation layer icons. One click to a default installer... When the software is installed and setup is complete, all that you need to do to access the newly created menu is to press the ESC key. On the menu you just made, you should have the icon you want to run as default installer, and the other details you need to make your disc bootable. The application is not optimized for powerful computers, as the maximum speed depends on the processing power of the machine. On average, the applications launches in less than a second, and you do not need any elaborate tools to achieve the same, but we would like to have more of this kind of products, since it is a neat way to get a menu quickly.
