Category:DOS software Category:DOS emulation software Category:DOS window shells Well, I've been trying to share my thoughts about new things but I've been overwhelmed by the amount of feedback from the community, and also just the sheer number of things I'd like to write about so I'll share a couple of thoughts here as well as some in my another post. A first quick comment... I've tried a lot of things in my life and it seems that I like to pick the worst that can happen. For example, I got into surfing, and after not that much experience I got a serious injury, now after a lot of surgery and going through a very hard recovery. And finally I managed to get back, but only to see that surfing has become a very risky activity, something that can happen to anyone now and then, and the average age for injury is now above 30. Or I started running, and I got injured, now I can't run anymore unless it's for recreation, and even then my running shoes hurt a lot every day, and I wouldn't bet that I'll ever be able to run and keep my feet healthy again. Or I tried in the past to try new ways of living, like simplifying my life, focusing on doing less, and it's always turned out pretty well, until the limits of my mind started and I couldn't anymore. So here are my thoughts: Surfing seems to require too much, the job of recovery is too big and it's what you can't do any longer that stops you. Running requires too much of your life if you keep focussing on one single thing. Paid work seems to be related to this third problem. If you are too greedy and focus too much on doing the highest paying job, you're going to make yourself go broke. The challenge is to know when to stop and focus on your family, spending time with them and helping them to stay focused, healthy and happy. In fact there is one thing that I learned from lots of experience: if you're greedy enough, you'll lose all your focus and you won't be able to help other people. You'll just be doing things for the money. And the most important thing is that, if you 1cb139a0ed
