In addition, Raised Panel Doors will calculate the amount of material needed for all common building materials such as wood, glass, drywall, nails and screws, as well as PVC and aluminum. Raised Panel Doors is a free, simple to use Home & Business calculating program that can do the job in no time. It is simple to add your own plans, templates and dimensions with a few mouse clicks. The Russian military says that the Syrian government and its allies will have to improve their performance at ongoing battles in Aleppo if they are to “have a chance of winning” against the opposition. The statement, issued by the Russian Defense Ministry on September 5, comes as the UN Special Envoy for Syria Staffan de Mistura met with Syrian government representatives in Damascus and has repeatedly said that there is no “military solution” to the nearly six-year-old conflict. Read more “The Syrian military and Russian military experts will carry out a joint analysis of their performance in the process of liberating Aleppo,” said General Sergey Rudskoy, the commander of the Russian Aerospace Forces, who was quoted by the Russian Defense Ministry. “The result will depend on the effectiveness of joint actions and our troops’ ability to hold the battle.” “In the future, in the course of the fight for Aleppo, the Syrian government and the Russian military task forces will need to conduct joint actions in order to improve their efficiency,” he added. A joint battle is already underway in eastern Aleppo. The defense ministry called for the conflict to be resolved through direct negotiations between the Syrian government and the opposition. At the same time, it pointed out that the military action against the terrorists must continue. The mission, the ministry stressed, is to help Syrian government forces “liberate the terrorists from Aleppo.” “A military solution is impossible as terrorists are becoming more and more radicalized,” Rudskoy said. “Our task is to help the Syrian army restore order in the most severely affected zones.” Read more
