It's the first time the new power of the game's engine has been unleashed on the players. "HyperMotion technology takes that movement data and uses it to realistically animate players on the pitch," creator Andrew MacDougall told us. "For example, we can have a player run up to a ball and hit it hard, and his legs will bend realistically. We also have weather that can affect the game, and we have things like wind, rain and snow that really affect movement. We're using that movement data to really make the players react to those elements." MacDougall went on to explain that the game will be playable in a variety of modes, but we'll have to wait until we get our hands on the game to learn more about those modes. "When we first saw this technology, we were immediately inspired to bring it to FIFA because it brings the player and game closer together," MacDougall explained. "When you can see a player, you have to understand them and feel like they're real. It's more exciting to be a football fan in any mode of the game and watch the motion capture data which comes from the real players, compared to watching them play on a screen or a projector. We feel that this will bring a new level of authenticity to the game. "We've been getting a lot of requests, and with FIFA Ultimate Team, it will be possible for players to upload their gameplay data and have it included in the game, so we'll be able to see what players are doing. Now, if you want, you can get a real player, and you can play against them in FIFA Ultimate Team. This is the first time I've been able to get to the level of the player. I played Tony Adams, Eric Cantona, David Beckham and I even played Thierry Henry! "The goal is not to know everything about football," MacDougall concluded. "I want to know what's going on in the game and not know the rules. My gaming experience will be different now. I'll go into a game as an unknown opponent and I'll be able to see what players are doing and then start to create my team. I can change tactics, I can change formation and see what works. I can get players who I've seen on video from other games and customization, and head and neck shape bring authenticity and realism to the game. Player Intelligence – FIFA 20 features several improvements to the AI and player behavior that make it feel even more authentic. FIFA also delivers more communication to the player in real time through the Crowd – the reactions of fans can sometimes influence the outcome of a match, influencing players through the crowds. New Broadcast Engine – Add another layer of entertainment to FIFA 20 with the introduction of a brand new broadcast engine that improves visuals and delivers an authentic viewing experience from all angles. Replay Improvements – The game-changing Replay system takes virtual memory to a whole new level by allowing you to save in-game moments and relive them with ease, along with archiving your best Moments and Great Goals, and then using YouTube or social media to share them with friends. A total of 34 national teams representing the whole world's most populous countries are included in the game, with approximately 850 new players to select from. A new engine of football innovations is powering all 32 official stadiums and more than 1,000 player models, while the Transfer Market has been given a massive overhaul with a massive amount of new features and functionality. More balanced gameplay and new stadiums are also on the way. 4K UHD – FIFA 20 will be the only FIFA to support native 4K in both Game and Virtual Reality modes, meaning you'll be able to experience new gameplay and experience a more immersive VR environment. This is the first entry in the series to be capable of running in 4K 60 FPS in both modes. A brand-new animation engine allows for increased photorealism and a new rendering system creates a more realistic and immersive experience in every facet of the game. AI improvements, including the ability to learn from mistakes and use tactics to drive play, and the introduction of a “Bio” attribute that allows players to avoid certain collisions that cause injuries on the field. Host team and opposition assistant coaches give individual tactical advice based on the player, weather and pitch conditions, with the ability to create individual teams with distinct traits. FIFA 20 features fully customizable cards, making it easier than ever to change the way you play the game. Create and customize thousands of different combinations of cards, allowing you to truly personalize your gameplay. AI improvements PLAY

FIFA (short for FIFA Interactive/Football) is the world's leading sports video game series. Developed by EA Canada and published by EA SPORTS, FIFA games span multiple platforms and feature real-world teams, players and stadiums. Why does the game have so many official licenses and official partnerships? The world of soccer is unique in that it's a global game with millions of passionate fans worldwide. It's a game that inspires in-depth, global competition that provides a number of unique opportunities, such as official kits, club associations and leagues, and official partnerships. Why do the licenses have to be so limited? If you've ever played a soccer video game, you understand the mechanics of playing soccer. You can only control what you control, and there's a large and distinct skill set involved in playing soccer. FIFA offers players of all abilities a fun way to experience the sport they love. What are the game's game modes? There's the usual FIFA experience - which includes all popular FIFA gameplay modes, as well as the ability to create and manage your own clubs. The FIFA series also includes FIFA Team Modes, which allow you to play your favorite real-world teams. Lastly, FIFA Ultimate Team modes let players build a team full of the greatest players in the world. How can you use FIFA Ultimate Team Modes? With all in-game modes, your experience is going to be different depending on how you play. This game was developed with sophisticated simulation that replicates the best aspects of soccer - teamwork, skill and passion - and provides the best feedback in sports games. How do the
